Week 2: Cisco Device Functions

Yes. After clearing the dynamic MAC address table, some MAC addresses can reappear when devices send traffic through the switch again. The switch learns MAC addresses dynamically by examining the source MAC address of incoming Ethernet frames and associating that address with the port on which the frame was received.